

Abstract:

The invention relates to a textile treatment agent for treating a textile that is to be brought into contact therewith, in particular, during a washing process. Said textile treatment agent contains at least one first textile treatment constituent and at least one other constituent. The invention provides that the first textile treatment constituent serves to form an inorganic structure on the textile surface, particularly on the surfaces of the textile fibers.